WILLIAM BULTMAN HOLTON

Dedication

Recognizing in his ceaseless and fearless devotion a valuable service to the American Lniversity, and in his sympathetic guidance a sincere friend of the students, the staff dedicates The 1937 Aucola to WILLIAM BULTMAN HOLTON

Foreword

THE Average College Seudent, on glancing at this book will ask, "What is its theme?" If he is thinking back a very few years to the knights, Indians, and pioneers who used to romp through an allegoric representation of the life of a college, the answer is "There is none!"

The editors have made no attempt to hold their breath under the surface of a protracted allegory. Rather, this book has been constructed like a musical composition, with a mood and a motif which occur at intervals throughout the several movements.

The 1937 Aucola is an attempt to show clearly, distinctly, and without prejudice the life at The American University in bold strokes of black and white. To be sure, its editors have been occasionally sentimental, occasionally humorous, in order that The 1937 Aucola might be completely human.

HURST HALL

Its massive Ionic columns shadowing the marble-tiled porch, Hurst Hall stands on the probable site where George Washington dreamed a great national university should stand. The first president's gavel, used in laying the cornerstone of the Capitol, fittingly solemnized the same ceremony in 1896 for the building which began the growth of The American University in realization of Bishop Hurst's dream. The hall bearing his name, completed in 1898, embodies by the impressive solidity of its Grecian architecture, the ideal of the University's founders. Ranking high in structural perfection among Washington's buildings, Hurst Hall heightens the national dignity of The American University.

BATTELLE MEMORIAL

Battelle Memorial, in which the greater portion of The American University Library is housed, honors the memorv of Gordon Battelle, trustee of the Universits. Erected in 1926, the building and its simplicity express a lasting gratitude for the interest of the men who gave time and means to promote the college. Battelle Memorial, whose donor's name joins that of great men like William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt in the trusteeship of the University, represents a continuity of interest in American by outstanding leaders.

WOMEN'S RESIDENCE HALL

The W'omen's Residence Hall, completed as it now stands in 1925, has an interesting histotical background. Begun in 1917 when Camp American University was established on the campus, this building served for three years as headquarters for scientific experiments of the Wat Department. Since it was never fully completed, the necessaty additions were made when the College of Liberal Arts was established to enable use of the building as a dormitory. Today, resident women students thus live in an atmosphere curiously linking university development with that of national history.

HAMILTON HOUSE

Located on the wooded campus acres which in 1672 comprised a grant from Charles 11 to one Thomas Addison, is Hamilton House. This first unit of a quadrangle of dormitories for men was built in 1930, and was named for the late Bishop and Chancellor Franklin Hamilton. Its informal architecture establishes a pleasing keynote for the men's living quarters, for which additional buildings will follow as The American University expands.

METROPOLITAN MEMORIAL CHURCH

Metropolitan Memorial Church, national in concept and scope, was so recognized in 1852 by sanction of the General Conference of Methodism. As the Capital City grew, the church was necessarily moved from its John Marshall Place site, to be relocated on Nebraska Avenue facing The American University Campus. The building of the new Metropolitan Memorial Church in 1931 was realized through nation-wide contributions, so that it indeed is a monument to a national patriotism. Within the sanctuary of this church, notable for its Gothic architectural beauty, has worshipped each president of the United States since 1869. In spirit and service, Metropolitan Memorial Church fulfills an ideal of national unity which is in distinct harmony with the concept of American University.

The Class of 1937 in its freshman vear was united with a splendid spirit by the expert tyranny of Eddie Hopper, while Joe Thomaskindly "showed them the ropes" of A. U. Under Bob Tinker as president, the class soon won recognition in athletics, publications, Dramat, and class honors.

Sophomore days bring back the vivid picture of Sidney Sachs as chairman of the Freshman Rules Committee. Frances Page was art editor of The Aucola and Carl Stevens, advertising manager. The Soph Star Dance under the chairmanship of Louisa Stuart was a great success.

As Juniors they were represented by Ralph Winslow on the varsity gridiron, and by Sidney Zink and Bill Leith on the basketball court, while the women won intramural honors in both hockey and basketball. The juniors headed the Women's House Government Association, the "A" Club, The Eyrie, Spanish Club, the Jester and Swagger clubs. The Eagle and The Aucola staffs claimed Jean Snavely, Pat Paxton, Margaret Woods, Carl Stevens, Anna Mae Browne, and Mary Lehman. The Jolly Juniors Jail Jamboree made a lasting impression, featuring gangsters in full prison regalia. The Junior Prom, directed by President Jack Spratt, was held at the Shoreham Hotel on April 17 in a whirl of excitement and beauty.

1937, and graduation! Sid Sachs, president of the Student Body, was chosen with William Powell to debate in Europe this May. Peg Walker served as secretary of the Student Council. Maxwell Galloway was the soprano soloist for the Chorus.

In the honor fraternities seniors set a record with nine members in the College Honor Society. Pi Gamma Mu and Brahmins each claimed six, with Beta Beta Beta and the Publications Honor Fraternity enrolling five seniors each.

The juniors represent a spirited array of talent and ability. As freshmen they discarded the green after defeating the upperclassmen on Field Day. Jane Getz, the first freshman ever to debate on the varsity squad, was a rising star of '38. The Eagle and The Aucola drew support from the ranks of the newcomers, and Bill Briggs handed the college a

A. Shaw laugh when he was crowned Queen of the May in a burlesque of the May Fête.

Ith the sophomore year appeared the gridiron stars: Applegate, Carlo, Dick, Hanawalt, Hansborough, and Winslow. Bee Craig through her prowess in hockey was made a member of the All-D.C. team. Bartle, Diggs, Frank, Getz, Roberts, and Wrenn carried on the class literary tradition. Is Life Worth Living gave vent to the dramatic abilities of Rowland Roberts and Bill Thompson. Nine menibers won class honors.

With Bill Thompson as president, the Class of ' 38 in its third year accepted the responsibility for directing many of the campus activities. Juniors headed the Anglican, Brecky, Commons, German, and ITesterner clubs. For the first time in many years the editorship of The Eagle was given to a junior, Frank Diggs. Five offices of the Student Christian Association belonged to members of the class.

In the basketball headlines were Edwards, Harris, Lee, and Palmer. During the three years, Lew Frank was active as editor of The Sportscore, organizer of sport puhlicity, and champion of the cause of the football men.

The social season reached two high points in the class dance, the Winter Frolic, and the Junior Prom, held at the Congressional Country Club, April 16.

And thus the Class of 1938 steps into seniority.

The Sophomore class is that which has been at school long enough to know its way around, yet not so long that it lives in a shadow of worry about diplomas. The Class of ' 39 has taken advantage of its opportunity:

As freshmen, they were into everything - athletics claimed Shoop, Sitnik, Benscoter, Yackel, Allo, Bartlett, and Toner for football; there were dozens of frosh out for The Eagle and Aucola, trying their hands at writing; Peggy Johnston, Virginia Omo, Nellic Strong, Catherine Knockey, Samuel Keker, and Homer Patton were in Is Life Worth Living, and Victor Purse and Lansing Hall augmented the list in The Tempest. That was the year they learned how things were done at $A$. U.

This year they knew, and took advantage of their knowledge. Howard, Bartlett, Shoop, Sitnik, Maize, and Toner were mainstays of the foothall team; Bartlett and Toner stood out in basketball. Charles Stewart was a varsity debater. Eliza Goddard was art editor of The Aucola and assistant art editor of The Eyrie, and other thirty-niners too numerous to mention were on the staffs of all publications.

Samuel Keker turned out to be a great lover in Dear Brutus; Omo, Strong, Johnston, Knockey, and Patton did their bit in the same play, and Two Gentlemen of Verona was full of sophomores. A new fraternity was organized on the campus, with a sophomore, Walter Bastian, as its president.

Kimber Shoop was chairman of the Smoking Committee when frontcampus smoking was legalized. A campus traffic officer was appointed in the person of Sam Keker to make the campus safe for pedestrians.

Two dances of the class were both successes, one a sophisticated Skyline Swing, and the other a Bowery dance. All in all, the class went in for everything, social, scholastic, artistic, athletic functions alike.

This year's freshman class has the unique distinction of being the first known sit-down strikers in this country or abroad, said sitting-down being done on the steps of Hurst Hall when the class revolted against sophomores' vested rights.
During those weeks, when ther were under the care of Senior Stevens and the thumb of Sophomore Shoop, there were also such other distinctions as Hinky Schneider's "Chicken Charlie" shuffle and the group swinging of the "Organ Grinder Swing.,"
The members of the Class of '40 have entered into sports activities with vigor, the men athletes being led by George Brown and Dud Rogers; and the women by Dorothy Shepherd, Helen Shepard, and Virginia Wakeman. In both varsity and intramural sports the class has more than held its own.

The freshmen have turned out to be wonders in many other fields. The Eagle seems packed with them, since there are eleven freshmen in various positions on the business and editorial staffs, with Charles Laughton as the first freshman ever to be an assistant editor. They are represented by William Hutterly, Helen Miller, Beryl Reed, and Dorothy Manning Smith on The Aucola staff.
Carol Hunsinger and Aline Wharton shine in the artistic line. Dramatics have also called upon some freshmen, notably those in the Dear Brutus cast, Jean Miller and Douglas Parmentier.

The freshmen started something different with their swimming party at the Shoreham in March. Their April Horror Dance was an unusual contribution to the A.U. social calendar.

Not the least of their achievements is their scholastic record. At the end of the first semester, the freshmen led the other classes in the number of honor students.

ORGANIZATIONS

Sachs Restores Student Council to Prominence;

Variety of Committees Undertake Campus Duties

Under the enthusiastic leadership of Sidney Sachs, the Student Council has reclaimed a place of vital importance. Stimulating forum discussions were adopted for assembly programs. Participation in the National Student Federation of America reflected credit upon the college through President Sachs's election to a national office and the selection of The American University debate team for a trip abroad.

Contact with the student body was strengthened by an informative bulletin board. A valuable publicity committee was begun. Other new committees treated student promotion, a student court, curriculum and personnel, the honor system, and statistics.

A complete revision of the constitution, the reopening of the dormitory library, and the Christmas party preceded by carol singing for both men and women represent the progressive activities of the Women's House Government Association this year.
A committee of students and faculty headed by Isabelle Noble planned changes in the constitution to meet the present-day conditions and to provide for a more active organization. Under the council's direction, the lounge was also supplied with magazines, popular and reference books, and other facilities.
During the Christmas season, the Dorm Party was replaced by a Carol Sing for men and women and a party for all boarding students at which Santa Claus distributed gifts. The formal Christmas dinner preceded Dramat's production of "Dear Brutus."

The traditional Christmas candlelight service centered about Margaret LeMasters, the most loved dorm girl. Jean Snavely, senior, Jane Getz, junior, Eleanor Belden, sophomore, and Mary Martz, freshman, were chosen by their classes as the most representative dorm girls.

Aucola Staff Is Selected On Basis of Work Done

The 1937 Aucola is actually the publication of the entire staff. Inaugurating a new policy, the editor made only four appointments before the yearbook was ready for press, awarding the assistant positions purely according to merit.
The basis of this policy was laid three years ago by Kirkley Coulter, who sponsored a new Aucola Constitution making The Aucola staff a continuous body, drawing its membership from all the college classes. This system, it is believed, produces more efficiency during the current year and greater experience among future staff members. High positions were given to those who took an active part in the planning and administration of the work of the book.
Several innovations mark the appearance of The 1937 Aucola, the most important of which is the use of more pictures which show the activities and interests of groups and fewer of the "before-the-firing-squad " variety. The total number of pictures is likewise increased.

The art work of Eliza Goddard, drawings and division-page photographs, is remarkably different from anything The Aucola has ever had the opportunity to use before. The humorous writing of Franklin Bartle, so popular in The Eagle, appears in a calendar section illustrated by Jean Snavely.

The 1936 Aucola, edited by Maynard Eicher, was awarded a first class honor rating by the National Scholastic Press Association, of which The Aucola is a member.

For the first time in several years, printer, engraver, and photographer were all given return contracts. In doing this, the staff of The 1937 Aucola has found firms in which it can depend and of whose reliability it is certain.

First Junior Edits Eagle; Page Size Is Increased

The twelfth year of publication of The Eagle marks the first time that a junior has been editor. This year Frank Diggs heads the editorial board, and a senior, Carl Stevens, heads the business staff of the bi-weekly newspaper.
The most important change of the year was the increase of forty-five percent in page size. In April the first six-column issue of The Eagle appeared, replacing the five-column layout which had been used for over eleven years. This plan will eliminate the need for so many six-page issues.

This year, besides the regular four-page issues, there have been two six-page issues, one welcoming the alumni to the anual homecoming and the other welcoming the new freshmen in February.

Various issues have been treated: food and smoking, among the most prominent. Definite action has been taken on the smoking question as the result of the airing, and the food problem has been temporarily settled.

In a popularity poll, Franklin Bartle's "Wild Oats" was voted the most-liked feature in the paper. Several new features have been added, a mong which are Mel Moffitt's cartoons, Ethel Whitlow's "Leaders on the Campus," Rowland Roberts's "Collegiate Arena," and Bill Fox's "The Thing Is. . .."

The staff this year was composed of three associate editors: Jane Getz holding the position of news editor, Rowland Roberts serving as copy editor, and Patricia Paxton handling the chief feature stories. There were four assistant editors, among whom is, for the first time, a freshman, Charles Laughton.

The Eagle is a member of the Virginia Intercollegiate Press Association and the Associated Collegiate Press. At the close of last year the latter organization awarded a first class honor rating to the paper as edited by Frank Hoadley.

The Eyrie, although only two years old, has established itself as an important campus publication. Owenita Sanderlin, editor since The Eyrie's founding in the fall of 1935 , has created a magazine which furnishes opportunity for the publication of student literature and art.

Sidney Sachs, as business manager for a second term, has a arranged the financing of the semi-annual magazine so that it is supported entirely by the student association without the aid given by the administration last year.

By joining the National Interscholastic Press Association The Eyrie has forged a connection with student publications throughout the country.

The staff is chosen without regard to classes, attempt being made to secure members with the greatest ability.

American University Debate teams, including sixteen debaters, travelled seven thousand miles, took part in thirty-five debates, and discussed eight questions this year.
A team composed of Sidney Sachs and William Powell made a sixweek tour of England, Scotland, and Wales during April and May. The honor of representing American colleges against sixteen foreign universities, including Oxford, Cambridge, and Edinburgh, was bestowed on The American University by the National Student Federation of America for outstanding achievement in debating.

In addition to the British trip, four women traveled to University of West Virginia, Wooster College, and Allegheny College to represent The American University against those schools, and men's teams took short trips to Rutgers, Pennsylvania State College, and Lebanon Valley College.

Throughout the year the main question discussed by the debaters was "Resolved, That Congress should be empowered to regulate maximum hours and minimum wages for industry."

The mixed chorus, composed of thirty-five members selected from the men's and women's glee clubs, functions weekly as a chapel choir and in addition gives a number of concerts. Two entirely musical chapels were presented, and concerts this season included appearances before the Women's Guild of the University, the National Conference of Church Related Colleges, the American Association of University Women, and the National Parks Association.

At Christmas, the chorus sang a special program at the Rialto Theater and at Vespers Service at the Metropolitan M.E. Church.

Assisted by the Glee Clubs, the organization sang in several of the local churches and at St. David's early in the spring

The long trip was replaced this year by several short trips to neighboring cities, and the climax of the musical season was realized in the combined Spring Concert of the Glee Clubs and Chorus, April 22. The annual banquet was held on April 28.

The orchestra provided special music for the Shakespearean play last spring and the Pushkin assembly this year in addition to the regular annual appearances.

A special quartet composed of Rowland Roberts and Anna Mary Rossman, violins, Marian Johnson, viola, and Mary Allen, cello, furnished the music for the dance of the "Strange Shapes" in The Tempest. The score for the incidental music was composed by Rowland Roberts.

At the assembly commemorating the death of the Russian poet, Pushkin, the orchestra played a waltz taken from an opera based on the poem, Eugene Onegin, by Pushkin.

In addition to these special performances, the orchestra played at the fall play, Dear Brutus, and will play at the Commencement Entertainment and at the Graduation Exercises.

The Band's program for this year improved both in the number of appearances and in the quality of the work. The band played at an out-of-town football game for the first time when they led the cheering section at the St. John's game. The quality of their work throughout the year was improved partly because of the addition of new students who have musical scholarships to the University.

Their regular activities included the spring concert, at which the band played classical selections and overtures as well as the college and pep songs, and appearances at all the home football games.

The musical library used by the band and orchestra has been reorganized and a filing system established so that for the first time members can take home pieces in order to practice.

The Student Christian Association has this year worked toward a better understanding of other religions and racial groups.

Some of the most outstanding speakers of the year were Dr. Benjamin Mags and Dr. Alan Locke of Howard University; Rabbi Simon, outstanding Jewish prelate; Mrs. Muskrat Bronson, prominent Indian leader; and Senator Gerald P. Nye, who spoke at the banquet. The visitations of interest were to the Church of the Latter Day Saints, to the Christian Scientist church, to the Jewish Synagogue, and to the Franciscan Monastery.

The Association also carries on a full social program. Among the social affairs enjoyed by the members were a Valentine and a Hallowe'en party, a treasure hunt, Dad's and Mother's days, and the Freshman Week program.

The International Relations Club, in presenting outstanding speakers from time to time at itssemi-monthly meetings, serves its purpose of stimulating student interest in international affairs and providing a means for them to keep informed on such events. Dr. Floyd M. Riddick has aided the organization in securing many of these speakers, one of whom was Herman Walker, winner of a Carnegie Scholarship to Europe.
The aims of the club are also furthered by its affiliation with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, which during the past year has donated several pamphlets and fortnightly reviews, together with twenty-five books on current subjects of world importance.
Approximately twenty new members were accepted this year, each speaking before the club on a topic of an international character. Such a talk is required of each applicant for membership.

Close connection between Central High School and American University is maintained by the Brecky Club, which is composed of graduates of Central attending the college.

The purpose of the club is to foster interest in the university among the high schools of the city, and to this end many outstanding high school seniors were invited to the Brecky-Westernerdance which took place in the spring.

Among the other activities of the club was a Scavenger Hunt last fall, when hardy Brecky members spent an afternoon roaming around Spring Valley.

The Westerner Club has proof of its value in the enviable record of seventy former Westernites attending the American University at present, to say nothing of the Westerners who have graduated from A.U. in the past.

The club was inactive during the first semester of the year, with the exception of one meeting for the election of officers. In February, the new freshmen from Western High School were greeted by the president at a formal meeting.

At this meeting it was decided that the club should endeavor to contact more high school students, and to interest them in the American University. In conjunction with this program a joint dance with the Brecky Club was held May 15 in the college gymnasium.

In November M. Leclercq a mused the group by giving his impressions of America. At Christmas a festive meeting was held with a tea dance following a play.

Other activities have included a French bridge party for flood relief, condensed versions of two of Molière's comedies: Le Médecin malgré Lui and Précieuses Ridicules, and musical programs. The year was ended with the traditional picnic.

El Circulo Español, the Spanish Club of the College, presented as its chief project of the year, the operetta Cielito Lindo, on December 4, 1936, in the gymnasium.

The operetta was written and directed by Señor Louis Cabrera. He was assisted in directing by Miss Ruberta M. Olds of the Spanish department. Maxwell Galloway was featured as Delia, and Benjamin Waldo as Carlos. The humorous element was supplied by Susan Drager as Regina, and William Briggs as José. Other important roles were played by Margaret Woods as Dona Ines, Robert Thompson as Luis, Helen Palmer as "La Gitana," and Helen Harkness "'La Guitarrista."

Peasant dances, a Spanish shawl dance, such melodious Spanish favorites as La Golondrina, Cielito Lindo, La Paloma, Chiquito, and Mani, lent sparkle and color to the romance and humor of the story.

Dancing was directed by Miss Louise Morseand Wilva Hankinson.

Reorganization of the Brahmin Honor Society during the first semester changed the requirements so that only men will be admitted to membership in the future. Previously this honorary fraternity which recognizes outstanding leadership in extra-curricular activities had elected both men and women who fulfilled the requirements of high scholarship, character, and leadership.
Members are elected twice a year; during the first semester Jane Getz '38, Margaret Walker '37, and William Powell' 37 , were inducted. At the end of last year two juniors, Maynard Eicher and Jean Snavely, and three seniors, Harriet Reed, Haylett Shaw, and Betty Wheeler were inducted. Eligibility for membership is determined on a point system covering the major campus activities; election is by the active members of the fraternity.

As part of its program to stimulate interest in public speaking and recognize outstanding achievement, Delta Sigma Rho sponsored two speech contests this year. During the first semester, the contest in Persuasive Public Speaking was won by Kimber Shoop, with John Gendron placing second. During the second semester there was a Poetry Reading contest.

Last year Edward Hopper, Chester Morrill, Harriet Reed, Haylett Shaw, and Melvin Wheatley, seniors, and Sidney Sachs and Betty Stephan, juniors, who fulfilled the requirements of high scholastic standing, two years' active work on the varsity squad, and participation in at least three intercollegiate debates, were elected to membership. Other active members of the chapter are Mr. Arthur Flemming, Dr. Emery E. Olson, and Dr. George B. Woods.

The American University Chapter has been in existence since 1931, when the District of Columbia Gamma chapter was installed. The purpose of the organization is to promote and reward the scientific study of social questions.

The active membership for the first semester included Dr. Lowell F. Huelster, Dr. Delos O. Kinsman, Sidney Sachs, and Ethel Whitlow. The members recently elected are Mary Aiken, Florence Birdseye, Marian Cohen, Frances Garrett, Sherman Lee, Isabelle Noble, Dorothy Schoonover, Robert Tinker, Ruth Ward, Henry Willard, and Frances Williams.

Beta Beta Beta, national honorary biological fraternity, maintains an active chapter at A.U. Advanced scientific meetings are held regularly, and once each semester there is an open forum at which some popular topic is discussed. Social meetings, also, are regular events, both on and off campus, and the climax of each season is the annual formal banquet. Members, drawn from the biology department, are elected on the basis of superior work and a genuine interest in science.

At the beginning of the year membership included Walter Edwards, Stephen Hatchett, Carl Stevens, Robert Stevenson, Louisa Stuart, Sarah Tolman. During the second semester Pauline Corkran, Lemuel Fraser, Marian Johnson, Virginia Omo, Kathryn Taylor, and Adele White were added. Associate members are Arnold Block, Mary Evaul, Robert Hill, Mary Louise Klaas, Frederick Silbersberg, and Mildred Tabb.

Membership in the Publications Honor Fraternity is the highest honor in the field of campus journalism. Junior and senior men, with a grade index of 3.0 or higher, who have made a valuable contribution to the publications of The American University in a position of importance on The Eagle or The Aucola, are eligible. Members of The Eyrie staff will be eligible next year. No women are admitted to membership.

For the first time the publications banquet was sponsored by the fraternity instead of by the staffs of the publications themselves.

The annual honor roll, composed of members of the upper three classes, not members of the fraternity, who have made outstanding contributions to publications, included Richard Callahan, Jane Getz, Eliza Goddard, Rowland Roberts, and Jean Snavely.

Among the newest of campus organizations, Cap and Gown meets the need for a women's honorary society to recognize outstanding contributions to campus life. Whereas women formerly belonged to the Brahmin Honor Society, the establishment of this organization enables them to reward leadership on a different basis. Under this system achievement is not measured on a schedule of points but rather in terms of service rendered.

In addition to leadership, the requirements include sound character, a grade index of 3.8, and membership in the senior class.

From the ranks of eligible juniors a limited number of women are elected to membership in the spring.
The purpose of Cap and Gown is to initiate projects that will enrich college life. To this end they gave a tea in February for the new women students, and plan a picnic in the spring for all women to establish a closer relationship between groups.

Matters of common interest among the social organizations on the campus are considered by the Interfraternity Council, composed of the president and a delegate from each fraternity and sorority, the Dean of Women, and the Dean of the College. Since the fraternities and sororities have been partially separated, the sororities have been working almost entirely under the Women's Panhellenic Council.

Sponsoring the Interfraternity Prom is the outstanding social activity of the council. This function was held in the Rose Room of the Washington Hotel on December the fifth, under the direction of various committees appointed by the council.

Although this is the first year of its existence, the Panhellenic Council has assumed the leadership of women's activities on the campus. This group, composed of the presidents and representatives of the college sororities, directed its efforts this year toward the fields of scholarship, leadership, and school songs.

Under the direction of Miss Brown, the Council instigated senior women's honorary fraternity, the Cap and Gown Society, to reward outstanding leadership in extra-curricular activities.

In March, they sponsored a song fest to interest the student body in writing of original songs. Three prizes were awarded in this contest: Delta Gamma won the a ward for group singing, Mary Lehman won the prize for the best original sweetheart song, and Herbert Fuchs won the prize for the best original toast song.
To encourage scholarship, the Panhellenic Council offered a silver cup to the freshman woman having the highest scholastic average for the year.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THINGS

ATHLETICS

Coach Young

Men's Athletics

Followers of the fortunes and misfortunes of American University's intercollegiate teams have witnessed many changes in the past year. Some were great and some small, some startling and some expected - but all were prophetic of greater things in the very near future.

Dynamic Walter $H$. Young, Director of Athletics for eight years past, led the gridiron Eagles through another season that did not come up to the rosy promise of "next year . . .!' Young and Line Coach George V. Menke were again called upon to produce a winning team from a very small squad sometimes dispirited by injuries and lack of reserves, but always solidly behind "the Coach."

Midway of the basketball season, Coach Young was injured in an automobile accident; his resignation as Athletic Director was accepted and Paul Smith immediately took charge of the Eagle cagers. "Smitty" continued to function as track coach and director of intramural sports, while producing the first A.U. quint in four years to win half its games

Meanwhile, the Faculty Athletic Committee under Dr. William B. Holton invited Gus Welch, nationally known football mentor and physical educator, former head coach at Washington State and Ran-dolph-Macon, captain of the Carlisle Indians in the days of Thorpe, and famous teller of tall tales, to the position vacated by Mr. Young. Mr. Welch signed a two-year contract on February 2. At the same time Staff Cassell, '36, was appointed field agent for athletics.

Fighting Eleven Shou's Ability Yet Has Unsuacressful Season

American University's foothall team during the 1936 season showed the fight and spirit necessary to produce a powerful combination. Coach Walter Young began training the small squad on September 3, so that, when the Eagles trotted onto the field for their first game, a green but well-drilled team was ready to "hold aloft those flaming banners."
A glance at the results of the team's efforts is discouraging from the wins and losses standpoint. Never-

Carlo, Captam theless, those who saw the team play know that this was the hest eleven that has ever represented American University on the gridiron. They had football ability and outclassed a majority of their opponents, but lacked the reserve strength that would have made this a winning as well as a scrappy football team.

Upon petition of the athletes, a scout was hired and is now in the field in an effort to obtain husky material for the next year. Given that extra power, American should hold down an enviable position in football next year.

The American University football team lost its first game of the season against a bigWashington College eleven here this afternoon by a score of 25-7. The scrappy little Eagles outplayed their opponents for the last three quarters after the Maryland team had 19 points in the first period.

Annapolis, Maryland.

October 17, 1936
St. John's College barely escaped defeat at the hands of American University's football team by sneaking over a 12-6 win. The visitors fought hard all the way, but lacked scoring punch. The high light was an eighty-yard run by Rogers, of the Eagles, on an intercepted lateral pass.

Eagles Win Half of Basketball Games, Shou' Promise of Illustrious'38 Season

For the first time in four years, American University's basketball team enjoyed a comparatively successful season, ending the regular 1936-37 session with wins and losses deadlocked at mine each.
Throughout the year the Eagle quint displayed flashes of unbeatable basketball, but the steadiness that makes for consistent victories was lacking. The court team had a chance to get into basketball "big time" when they played City College of New York, but, unfortunately, they had an "off" night, losing to their hosts, 51-19.

The Eagle five, except for the inconsistencies of play, showed continual development. They started out the year with nothing but hopes and possibilities, and ended the year with a group of veterans who should lead A.U. to greater basketball realms than the Orange and Blue has ever known.

The basketeers started the season slowly, winning only one out of the first five games. They began to find themselves at Hampden-Sydney, when, after having been swamped earlier in the year on the A.U. court, they outclassed the Tigers on their own floor, 30-26.

Then the ball began to move, and, to the delight of Eagle followers, the team, after losing to St. John's, won five out of the next six games. The sweetest of these was a $36-23$ win over St. John's of Annapolis, this being the lirst time in four years that the Johnnies had been defeated by an Eagle quint.

But here the irregularity of this year's court team caught up with them, so that the basketeers lost their next two games. Johns Hopkins sneaked over a 48-47 defeat, and the following week-end saw the American five show their worst brand of play when they were defeated by the City College of New York.

The season ended with a well-played 49-19 victory over Virginia Medical, and a ragged win over the Alumni, 3830. Catholic University was met in an exhibition game that saw the renewing of an old rivalry between the two schools. With the graduation of only

Returning Track Men Push Neu' Major Sport

As the 1937 track season loomed close ahead, preparations were made for a stronger and more successful squad in American University's newest major sport. Only one member of the ' 36 trackmen graduated, justifying prospects for an improved record this spring.

The parade of returning veterans was led by Bob Hill, one of the chief point-getters for the Eagles. Next in line came Emerson Bartlett, who showed prospects of running off with a large number of events. Lindsay Branson and Clarence Corkran had the ability to show their heels to opponents in the dashes, while Gus Hertz and Olin Smith had the makings for good mid-distance men.

Kimber Shoop, Pete Sitnik, Walt Edwards, Bob Stevenson, Glenn Sweigart, and a host of new material rounded off a track squad that could cause trouble to many opposing cindermen. Improved training facilities, and finer track equipment having been added, American University has seen the wing-spreading of the Eagles' youngest and smallest intercollegiate sport, track.

The return of four letter men from the undefeated team of 1935 pointed to another successful season for American University tennis team in the spring of 1936. But, handicapped by cold, rain, and mud, the racqueteers were unable to maintain the high pace of the year before and ended the season with eight wins and six defeats.

Len Harris played the numberone position. Sherm Lee was probably the most improved player on the team, losing only two single matches.

Harris, Lee Defeated In Net Toumaments

Len Harris and Sherman Lee were sent to White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, during the fall, where they represented The American University in the Intercollegiate Tennis Tournament and in the Fall Tennis Tournament.

Harris lost to the number-one man of Washington and Lee, 8-6, 8-6; while Lee, after having defeated West, of Lynchburg, lost to Foreman of North Carolina, the eventual runner-up, 6-3, 6-4. In the Fall Tournament, Harris went out on the first round, and Lee on the second. Lee was eliminated by the nation's eighth ranking player.

Both men made a creditable showing for the University so that with this heartening display, the return of May found Hudson, Sarles, and Taylor, the tennis team, looking forward to a successful season in 1937.

Minor Sports Program Available to All Men

Under the guiding hand of Coach Paul Smith, A.U.'s intramural sports program spread into a varied field of competition which offered every man in school a chance to participate in some sport.

This year boxing was brought to the fore again by Dr. Riddick, former intercollegiate champion. A team was whipped into shape and one meet was held in December with the Merrick Boys' Club of Washington.
The annual ping-pong tournament was held during March, with Harris, Hudson, Zink, and Sitnik as runners up. This contest is always followed with interest. Last year's winner was Roger Barss.

In the fall horseshoe tournament, Wesley Dodge came bravely through to win over his old rival, Albert Shaw, in the finals.
Just as winter closed in, the semifinals of a school-wide tennis tournament were held, the finalists being "Happy" Hickey and Pete Sitnik. Cold weather called a halt [^9]to the tournament and the intramural tennis champ of the school was not recognized until warm weather and spring were well under way.

During the winter months most of the time was taken up with rolleyball and basketball. The faculty team entered the intramural volleyball series for the first time and won that series after a hard match with the juniors. In the meantime, the juniors were on their way to a decisive win in basketball. Playing a game against the Virginia Medical Junior Varsity, the Class of '38 lacked the pep that had sent them into the championship, and lost a slow game 15-14.

Speedball, touch football, and softball contests were held during good weather and when inclement condicions prevailed fencing was taken up by some of the more vigorous.

The annual Field Day, which was inaugurated last spring, was held late in the spring this year.
 The object of this meet is to get every man interested in some form of athletic event.

The "A" Club, honorary athletic organization for women, sponsors the women's intramural sport program, and this year featured an intercollegiate Play Day.

The five visiting teams who participated in this Play Day on November 21 were Marjoric Webster, University of Maryland, Trinity, Western Maryland, and Wilson Teachers College.

In setting up the women's intramural sports program, the "A" Club chooses leaders to be in charge of each sport and also class leaders to serve throughout the year.

Following each series of interclass competitions in hockey, basketball, volleyball, and soccer, orange and blue teams were chosen from a mong the outstanding players of the class teams to compete against one another. The hockey trophy, a silver loving cup, was awarded the freshmen, the winners of the interclass competition.

The organization is made up of women who have gained recognition in the field of athletics and who have earned at least one letter a ward. Of the present members, Virginia Slinn, Betty Stephan, Margaret Walker, and Margaret Woods have earned an award each year.

Eagle Hockey Team

 Entertains EnglishElisabeth Craig

Captam
The fall of 1936 will long be remembered in Eagle Hockey history for the visit of the English Touring Team to Washington. This gave A.U. the privilege of entertaining one of the veteran English players.

Another of the season's highlights was the large Play Day held on the campus, when A.U. was host to five colleges

Although not always victorious the team played exceptionally good hockey this year, mainly because the majority of the players had worked together in previous years. Carol Laise, speedy left wing, and Captain Bee Craig, left inner, did a large part of the attack dribbling, while Ruth Humphreys, diminutive center-forward, was high scorer.

The schedule included games with Marjorie Webster, the Et Ceteras, Maryland, and Wilson Teachers College. The Eagles were justly proud of holding Marjoric Webster, a school which specializes in physical education, to 3 goals in a 3-1 battle, and the Et Cetera Club, which is composed of experienced players and coaches, to an even closer 3-2 score.

The Eagles were represented on the All-Washington first team by Bee Craig.

Wide Choice of Sports Offered Women Students

Hockes

This vear the hockey program reccived fresh stimulus from the freshmen who, after close competition with the seniors, captured the interclass leadership. The hockey trophy offered by the "A" Club was a warded them. The Orange team was victorious over the Blue.

Archery

The archery program showed marked progress under the management of Miss Morse and Harriette Christic. With new equipment the girls have shown considerable improvement and are anticipating forming a varsity team. It is hoped they may be able to compete with local teams in archery matches next year

Badminton

This year the Women's Physical Education Department for the first time offered a class in the popular English game, badminton. The women are able to keep in training for tennis by the footwork, swinging, and fast perception of the shuttlecock.

Ping-Pong

A ping-pong tournament is held every spring. Last year's winners were Mildred Tabb and Frances Williams.
Hiking

Under the supervision of Helen Palmer, groups of women went on a number of breakfast hikes in the fall. As a part of the requirements for an " $A$ " the women must hike for part of a credit.

Dancing

Increasingly popular among the women in Physical Education activities at American University is the modern dance. A comparatively new development, it has been emphasized under the instruction and creativeness of Miss Morse. As a conclusion to the classes' work, there was a Dance Concert in April. Several schools met to show their interpretations of various modern dance forms at an intercollegiate symposium

Basketball

For the first time in the history of women's basketball at American University, a picked team played the alumnae; the undergraduates won by a score of 16-11.

The seniors won the interclass series, with the freshmen placing second, and the sophomores and juniors last. Individual honors go to Walker and Shepherd, the infallible forwards, while Williams and Laise plaved the best all-around games.

The orange team downed its opponents by forty points, 54-14. Alpha Sigma Chi won the intersorority series. The most interesting event was the guy-gal game, in which the men players, skirt-clad, lost by a close margin.

Tennis

Last May, feminine racqueteers stepped from the ranks of intramural enthusiasts and were defeated by George Washington University.

Original Masque Given At May Day Program

The May Day Celebration was held in the Greek Amphitheatre, May 16, 1936. In keeping with the May Fête custom, an original play, written by Miss Morse, was presented through the medium of unique dancing and dialogue. The play took the character of a medieval masque. Colorful costumes and appropriate music added to the festive occasion.

The masque followed the ancient pattern with the virtues and vices in direct contrast. The dance of the graces was done by Margaret Johnston, Doris Brougher, and Lansing Hall. In antithesis, the dance of the vices was done by Patricia Paxton as Deceit, Elizabeth Morse as Anger, and Annabelle Spangle as Greed.

Another of the outstanding original dances was that of the Monks. This was an interpretation of medieval customs and monastic life.
The leading characters throughout the masque were Jean Snavely, the Prince, and Ethel Whitlow, the Princess. The climax of the Celebration was the crowning of Alice Applegate as Queen of the May. Her attendants were Mary Lesta Wakeman and Berenice Lown, who, with the Queen, led the final May Day procession.
